WHAT MAKES DOTT SERVICES LIMITED STAND OUT?

Q What do you consider the key challenges and turning points that shaped DOTT SERVICES LIMITED into the infrastructure giant it is today?

Key Challenges:

a) Bank guarantees, financial support, and liquidity: Every contract requires procuring bank guarantees and other banking facilities to fulfill contractual obligations, ensure smooth execution, and meet guarantee requirements. For most local companies, obtaining these guarantees is a major challenge as banks demand collateral security. The construction industry typically invests in assets like workshops, offices, and quarries rather than real estate, which banks prefer for mortgages. This made meeting the collateral requirements particularly challenging.

b) Technical qualification criteria and experience: Securing the first major contract has often been difficult due to clients' minimum experience criteria, which often require prior completion of similarly sized projects. Many local companies face challenges meeting these criteria, as such projects may not have been executed in Uganda before.

c) Skilled technical workforce: A significant challenge has been finding skilled personnel, especially plant and equipment operators and mechanics. This shortage becomes more pronounced when multiple infrastructure projects are underway in the country, leading to a high demand for qualified technical staff.

d) Payment delays from clients: Payment delays have posed substantial difficulties for construction companies, with some payments delayed for over three quarters. These delays often force companies to borrow from commercial banks to sustain ongoing projects, which impacts profitability and can hinder efficient business operations.

Turning points: Through consistent performance, reliability, and delivering projects with value for money,
